ROUNDTABLE LUNCH

Development and Culture: Why art? Why now?

Tuesday, April 21, 2015
Cornell University

11:30 AM – 1:30 PM
Warren Hall 401

At this dynamic event, three groups of scholars and artists will present their experiences with integrating culture work into community and economic development strategies. We will start with a brief introduction of “community cultural development,” its rich Cornell history, and emerging national sources of funding and support for this work.

Lunch provided — please RSVP to jkj37@cornell.edu

Featuring:

- Ted Alter, economist, Penn State University
- Bruce Balfour, Ph.D. candidate, Penn State University
- Sarah Chalmers, director of civic engagement at Civic Ensemble in Ithaca, NY
- Dudley Cocke, director of Roadside Theater at Appalshop
- Gladstone “Fluney” Hutchinson, economist, Lafayette University
- Prentice Onayemi, director of partnerships & communications at ArtPlace America
- Scott Peters, historical sociologist, Cornell University

Students, faculty and community members welcome!